INSIDE SOCCER - first with the BIG stories

GOODISON

YOUNG CANBERRA goalkeeping prodigy Danny Milosevic is off to Goodison Park, the home of English Premier League side, Everton.

Milosevic is unknown to most Ericsson Cup fans after suffering a training round injury in October which has kept him out for the majority of the season.

But despite that he has been one of the most exciting prospects seen in the competition this year and is widely tipped to be Australia's goal-keeper for the 2000 Olympic Games.

"Danny has a great attitude," says his Cosmos coach, Mike Lyons.

"That is one of the really good things about him.

"He also has lots of talent and there are a lot of people in the local game who are predicting a big future for him."

Already there have been numerous enquiries for the tall Cosmos youngster but the club has quickly slapped a not for sale sign on him.

Currently Canberra Cosmos are negotiating with the AIS graduate to extend his stay with the Ericsson Cup new boys.

"I am confident that Danny will sign with Cosmos," said Canberra chairman Paul Murphy.

"We have already had long talks with him and I am sure that he will stay with us."

That will certainly ward off a string of other clubs, UTS Olympic included, which were looking to Milosevic to solve their goalkeeping problems.

"Danny just wants to play for Australia," says coach Lyons.

"He is setting his first target to make the Olyroo side for the 2000 Olympics but he also wants to get a full cap.

"There is plenty of time for him to go overseas, he is still only seventeen.

"But he wants to go overseas - after he has made it here.

"We have arranged a four week training period at Goodison Park for him.

"Everton keeper Neville Southall has already sent him over videos and he is looking forward to going.

"We'll send him over for four weeks in August.

"That will get him really sharp for the season."

Milosevic has fought his way back strongly after a serious training ground accident which saw him on crutches.

"I've worked hard to get back to fitness," he said recently.

"Now I just can't wait to get back into the first team.

"I've set a goal to play for Australia at the Olympics and I'll just have to keep working hard to get there."

Milosevic is rated very highly with one top coach categorising him as the best ever Australian keeper at his age.

Now Canberra Cosmos coach Mike Lyons is calling on his Everton connections to keep his teenage prodigy at Canberra Cosmos.

CLOCK OFF!

Ericsson Cup clubs told to turn off the time

ERICSSON CUP clubs have been told to turn their clocks off - or else.

"It is ridiculous," one senior club official told Inside Soccer.

"Surely there are far more important things to worry about than whether there is a clock on the scoreboard.

"I haven't been able to find anything in the competition rules which actually stops us from having a clock but we have been told to get it off the scoreboard.

"Apparently there are only three clubs in the country which actually have scoreboard clocks - but why should our fans suffer because the others don't have them?

"I can't see the problem and think it would be good for fans to see how much time is left in the regulation period."

A search through the Cup's rules has failed to find any reference to ground clocks - or music, another bone of contention with some clubs.

Another club official told Inside Soccer that they were informed by a Soccer Australia official that they couldn't play any music during games.

"That's right," he said.

"My club was interested in playing our theme song every time we scored a goal, or during passages of play - that sort of thing.

"We thought that it was a way to get the crowd more involved in the game and actually believe that it would start to get the fans chanting.

"But we can't, we're not allowed to."

With the feeling in most clubs that the rules governing the conduct of games, unwritten and written, are antiquated there are sure to be a host of changes during the off season.

This season has been the most successful national league on record from a fans' perspective and Soccer Australia will be keen to consolidate on that. SocOz media liaison officer Scott Crebbin confirmed that different aspects of the game would be looked at in the close-down period, including giving the media more access.

Inside Soccer has campaigned for some years to get a regular release on tribunals and transfers - and at last looks like being successful.

"We'll have to look at that during the off season," said Scott Crebbin.

"There are several areas which will be discussed with a view to giving more information."

After a period in the doldrums Australian soccer is at last shaking off the 'wog ball' image that haunted it during previous decades.

This season has been the best for some years and there is a new aura of confidence within the game.

Certainly this season has seen far more TV exposure than for some time.

THE BIG TRANSFER STORIES - ONLY IN Inside Soccer

Olympic in race to sign City hot gun

SYDNEY club UTS Olympic are heading the pack in a bid to sign Adelaide City's hot gun striker, Damian Mori.

And sources close to the club are confident that he will be the third in a trio of big name players to come to the revitalised club - as exclusively reported by Inside Soccer two weeks ago.

"I believe that we are close to getting our man," said our source at the Leichhardt side.

"There is tremendous ambition at this club and it looks like we are at last shaking of our 'sleeping giant' tag which has haunted us for so long.

"Dave Ratcliffe has brought so much respect to the club that everyone connected with it now sees the full potential."

And it seems that that means bolstering an already impressive playing squad.

With the signing of Jimmy Patikas and Steve Refenes Olympic clearly intend business.

Now the possible arrival of Mori is sure to set the fans buzzing.

This season Damian Mori has shot himself into the record books with a sensational 31 goals - blasting the previous record to smithereens.

That has started a scramble by the big name money clubs for his signature.

Should Mori sign for the Sydneysiders then that could also hasten the departure of Kimon Taliadoros - widely tipped on the terraces to be on his way out at the end of the season.

Olympic is also still in the race for another goalkeeper and it looks like Wollongong's Brett Hughes is a possible target.

"Hughes has been in great form this season," says our club source.

"Olympic are still after Canberra's Danny Milosevic and he is the number one target.

"But if that fails then expect Hughes to come to Leichhardt."

This season Olympic coach David Ratcliffe has used both George

Perth heat starts fury

SEVERAL top name Ericsson Cup coaches have expressed concerns about playing in the mid day heat of Perth - if SocOz plans to allow Perth Glory to kick off at 3.00pm go ahead as announced some time ago.

There seem to be two main concerns amongst clubs, one of the danger to health and the other of the obvious advantage it would be to the new league side.

"We had to play Sydney United at that time recently," said Marconi's Premiership winning coach Manfred Schaefer, "and it was really hard."

"The players really felt the heat and I thought that it also gave United an advantage as they had played a couple of games at that time and were used to the conditions."

Schaefer was guarded about his comments about the Perth situation - obviously mindful of a possible disrepute charge.

Morwell Falcons Harry Bingham also questioned the decision saying that he thought it would have a serious effect ground, so it will be a surprise to see

Playing in possible mid 30 degree heat places a huge strain on players and increases the likely chances of dehydration because of fluid loss on players.

Playing in possible mid 30 degree heat places a huge strain on players and increases the likely chances of dehydration because of fluid loss.

Medical opinions have also poured into Inside Soccer since we announced our campaign to get SocOz to change its decision.

Another coach critical of the move was first season new guy and former Everton star, Mike Lyons, at Canberra Cosmos.

"Where are they going to play?" he also asked while agreeing that midday games were a health risk.

"At the moment Perth Glory don't have a soccer exactly where they will play."

The decision to admit Perth Glory to the Ericsson Cup has been widely applauded by everyone in football but the question of the kick off time seems to have been down played.

Inside Soccer has launched its campaign to bring some common sense to the fore - and will not stop until SocOz makes a change.

Over the next two weeks we will bombard Soccer Australia with questions about playing a summer competition in daytime - and in Australia's hottest state.

Stay tuned for an interesting debate

Foster puts his future on hold

THIS SEASON one of the big successes in the Adelaide City side has been hard running midfielder Craig Foster.

So much so that the mid-season revival by the South Australians has as been much down to his influence as any other single factor.

That has alerted a posse of other clubs and it hasn't gone unnoticed at Sydney United either, the club where he made his national league debut as an eighteen year old fresh from the Institute of Sport.

"United have always been keen on him," said a club insider recently.

"I think that Branko Culina is one of his big admirers and I wouldn't be surprised if they put in a big money offer to land him for next season."

"It is no secret that the United midfield lacks aggression and Foster would be an ideal balance to the ball playing midfielders like Ante Moric and Robbie Enes."

"Since Aytac Genc

went back to Malaysia, Sydney United has also gone backwards."

Sydney United are also believed to be desperate to secure Genc on a permanent basis once his contract with PKENJ Johor expires later this year.

Foster himself refused to be drawn into speculation on the matter when he was quizzed by SBS's Kyle Patterson during last Sunday's On The Ball.

"I don't think it would be fair on Adelaide City while we are in the Top Six to talk about a possible move," he said.

But Foster did hint at the fact that he could make a move to secure his future.

The 25 year old, who celebrates a birthday this week, has been at Hindmarsh for two seasons and has also had a spell at Sunshine George Cross as well overseas in Hong Kong.

INTER TOUR ON

THE WORST KEPT SECRET in Sydney soccer seems to be gaining in momentum, with a major announcement expected shortly.

It is a proposed tour by Italian greats, Inter Milan. Despite not having its best ever season, the Serie A club would be a huge drawcard for Australian fans and Marconi president Tony Labbozzetta is determined that that the tour takes place.

"We are waiting for Soccer Australia to get back to us just now," confirmed Marconi soccer official, Ross Musso.

"Mr Labbozzetta is very keen on the tour and the club has put in a lot of hard work already."

It seems certain that Australia would relax its rule of not playing against club sides to take on the Italians with the probability that it could give national coach Eddie Thomson a good build up to the Intercontinental Championship eliminator against Tahiti.

When AC Milan played two games in Sydney and Melbourne three years ago the Aussies did just that and a repeat would ensure full houses for the tour games which would likely be played in Sydney, Melbourne and Adelaide.

Another Italian Serie A club, Sampdoria, are also due in Australia shortly and are booked to play in Perth at the end of May.

"We are still awaiting confirmation from Soccer Australia that the tour can go on," added Musso.

"In the past that has been something of a formality and everyone at the club hopes that the games do go on - it will bring a big buzz to the local scene as they are still one of the greatest clubs in world football."

The tour is expected to be sponsored by tyre company, Pirelli.

Ecka Cup clubs back in action by August

PLANS FOR next season are already at an advanced stage and it looks like Ericsson Cup clubs will be in action as early as August.

The season proper is set to start after the Johnnie Walker Cup which would revert to its old format of a pre-season tournament starting as early as late August or early September.

The Ericsson Cup is set to kick off on the weekend of 20/22 September.

Next season will see a fourteen club format with the inclusion of new clubs, Collingwood Warriors and Perth Glory.

Last week Heidelberg Warriors sacked coach Andy Bozikas making the way for the expected confirmation of the appointment of Eddie Krncevic as coach.

Heidelberg will enter the league in a joint venture with Collingwood Aussie Rules club and will be known as Collingwood Warriors.

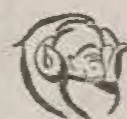

But the early start of the season is good news for Ericsson Cup fans.

With State Federations now playing their own Cup competitions at the end of the winter season that will see most Ericsson Cup clubs back in training at the end of July.

They would be involved in State Cups by mid August and it also looks likely that the latter placed State League sides in the State Cups would also be added to the national event, the Johnnie Walker Cup.

A DROP OF SCOTCH with Bruce Campbell

EVERTIME that the Top Six comes around we get the usual stories about whether it should be a first past the post system or a play-off, and now we have another one – whether 3rd should play 5th or 6th.

Who cares what the media pundits think because they are clearly in the minority.

The overwhelming evidence points to the fact that the Australian soccer going public wants a play off system.

Every season the figures at the Top Six matches prove that fact beyond any doubt, and every year the Grand Final proves to be the best attended game of the season.

After all, who gives a stuff about what they do in England or anywhere else for that matter, or what they did in nineteen canteen.

This is 1996 Australia and the vast majority of fans want a Top Six.

So why can't the 'experts' just leave it alone?

Isn't there enough to talk about, hasn't the season provided enough topicality without dredging that old chestnut up?

But I guarantee that it re-appears again next season – just as certain as the start of a new season will bring more moaning and groaning about player drain and how our game has gone down the hill.

Every season we get the same old crap; first the player drain which turns gradually into a belter of a season then just as the play offs are on us we get the old 'shouldn't it be a league champions system' drivel again.

The majority of the Australian soccer media is in bad need of an injection of new blood because the predictability of the drivel spouted annually is now beyond the boring, it is just pathetic.

For the record, I think that the Australian soccer public deserves a lot better.

It deserves to get a decent coverage of the news stories covering the events of the game.

And on the subject of news coverage what about the pathetic standard of the Sydney metropolitan dailies?

Each paper has an excellent soccer writer. Love them or hate them, Ray Gatt, John Taylor and Mike Cockerill are all superb at their craft with at least one of them enjoying a reputation amongst his peers as a quite brilliant writer.

But what about the coverage their papers give

The Telegraph doesn't cover Aussie soccer on a Tuesday because that's John's day off.

The Australian seems to exclude Ray Gatt's soccer copy whenever it can while the Sydney Morning Herald, which has Mike Cockerill as the soccer number one, is just a joke.

The story goes that David Hill took the Editors of these prominent mass circulation papers to lunch to get more soccer coverage.

Well, if that's true – then you must have picked the wrong restaurant, Davey boy, because it has got WORSE.

But big bouquets to Galaxy, SBS and Optus TV – what a brilliant job they are doing for the coverage of the game.

And Harry Michaels can rightly take a bow for much of that – including the coverage on the commercial TV news grabs.

Another Sydney media outlet deserving an award is little BFM, the Bankstown radio station which provides up to SIX hours of Aussie soccer a week.

Maybe if SocOz gave media awards then the so-called 'big guys' might be forced to sit up and take notice – or least shown up for what they are, second rate.

But maybe the big boys are big only in their own minds.

Shaking off the struggle town tag

OVER THE last few years things haven't been very rosy at Wollongong's Brandon Park. In fact, and to be blunt, they have been crap.

It got that bad that former coach Dave Ratcliffe even looked like getting the chop.

But 'Bronson' survived what was looming as a motion of no confidence to instead turn his back on the Wolves and head for UTS Olympic.

Berti Mariani came in but didn't last the term and when the Harry Michaels's-backed Nick Theos took over a struggling side the knowing heads were predicting when, rather than if.

A spate of loan deals with Marconi and Sydney United bought Theos the time that he needed to make his own mark and now he has been confirmed in a new two year deal, a time in which he wants to bring the glory days back to Brandon Park.

"I'd like it to happen next season," he says with complete confidence.

"But it takes time and if it doesn't happen next season then we will definitely be back at the top the year after that."

Theos rightly points out the statistics of his 16 game sequence as coach – a sequence which saw the Wolves climb off the bottom rung and shake up the big boys.

"In those sixteen games we only lost 9 by just one goal," he says.

"We were also ahead in eight of them at one stage in the game and hit 15 posts."

But Theos doesn't look to Lady Luck as an excuse, and instead blames inexperience.

"We need to add to our squad to get that," says the first season Ericsson Cup coach.

"Some of the players have been outstanding for me."

"Alvin Ceccoli is an example."

"He was in the Under 21s which I coached at Leichhardt a few seasons ago so I knew what I was getting."

"At left back he has been outstanding for me this season."

"He has had a great partnership with Richard Lloyd."

"Matt Horsley has also been brilliant and he is the sort of player who always leads by example."

"He is also a local who just doesn't want to play for anyone else."

Chairman Brian Hastings is also confident of the future of his club.

"We have done everything that we have ever been asked to by the League," he says.

"Wollongong is financial and this region has a big part to play in soccer's future."

"Obviously there have been let downs and problems but I don't think that we ever thought our future in the Ericsson Cup was at stake."

"The Wolves have been a part of top soccer in Australia for a long time – and we intend to be there in years to come as well."

However, the realities of the situation are that to do that then there has to be an influx of players – and fast.

Theos knows that – as does financial backer Harry Michaels.

And it looks like a substantial sum will be made available to bring in new players.

It is tipped that Theos will look overseas for new players and that anything up to FIVE new faces will feature in a Wolves strip next season.

Realistically, the Wolves have to do that to shake off their struggle town tag, a tag which doesn't sit well with coach, players or fans.

Premier Stallions

Marconi coach Manfred Schaefer was "delighted" with his side's gutsy come back against West Adelaide to take out the club's first Premiership since the 1989/90 season.

"We felt confident going into the game," he said.

"The important thing was that our destiny was in our control.

"We didn't have to rely on any other team to do the business for us and that was an important factor.

"All along the players have been confident and now obviously we intend to go on with the job and get to the Grand Final."

Marconi are rated by most pundits as firm favourites to win the Championship.

And for the statistically minded the Stallions share the unique distinction with Melbourne Knights, their Major Semi Final opponents, as being the only sides in soccer history to win the Premiership-Championship double.

Six expats named in Olyroo squad

EDDIE Thomson has named a 22 man provisional squad as he attempts to go one better than Australia's fourth Olympic Games placing at Barcelona in 1992.

The national boss intends to trim the squad to a travel party of eighteen this week as the Olyroos depart for USA on 13 May where they will play a two game build up against the USA before taking on the, as yet, unknown CONCACAF challenger in the first leg on May 26.

Australia, the winners of the Oceania section, play the runners-up of CONCACAF for the right of entry to the Olympic finals tournament which will take place in July.

Thomson has named no fewer than SIX overseas based players – although it would have undoubtedly been seven had Glasgow Rangers star Craig Moore been fit.

Moore has recently broken down in training after fighting his way back to full fitness after suffering a broken bone in his foot in a Scottish League derby match with Glasgow Celtic.

Another overseas based player said to be in contention for the USA Olympics is John Aloisi, currently playing with Cremonese in the Italian Serie A.

"Eddie has been negotiating with the player and his club to have him included in the squad," said a SocOz spokesman.

Also included in the squad is teenage sensation Harry Kewell who recently made his full international debut against Chile after making the first team at Leeds.

Thomson describes Kewell as "the best fullback ever developed in Australia".

The 22 man squad is:

Hayden Foxe (Ajax), Paul Agostino (Bristol City), Gabriel Mendez (Admira Wacker), Mark Viduka (Zagreb), Harry Kewell (Leeds United), Tony Carbone (Nottingham Forest), Goran Lozanovski, Brad Hassell (Adelaide City), Clint Bolton, Sean Cranney (Brisbane Strikers), Luke Casserly (Marconi), Frank Juric, Danny Tiatto, Joe Spiteri, Adrian Cervinski (Melbourne Knights), Kevin Muscat (South Melbourne), Mark Babic, Ante Moric, Robert Enes (Sydney United), Peter Tsekenis, Norman Tome (UTS Olympic), and Ross Aloisi (West Adelaide). Australia play qualifying games on May 26 and June 2.

THE OLYMPIC DREAM

Australia's 1992 hopefuls line up for the first leg of the eliminator against Holland at the Sydney Football Stadium. They suffered the disappointment of a 1-1 draw - but two Ned Zelic goals in Utrecht got them through on the away goals rule.

FOR ALL of the clubs, players it represents. But the finals also the culmination of four represent a huge years hard work; four struggle for finals' years of dedicated officials as they fitness and skills struggle to keep back the waves of talent training.

For others it means scouts. In 1992 Australia much more; the Olympic Games are the only had two foreign pathway to the rich based players in its 20 playing fields of European man squad - Mark Bosnich (Aston Villa) and Paul Okon (Brugge).

History shows that the Olympic Games are also a dream field for European talent scouts, bringing to yet to make his first get-her the best of team debut for his Asian, African and other so-called 'third' world soccer countries - all regarded as easy pickings for the cashed up European year old at Manchester

OLYMPIC FACTS

← Australia has played at THREE Olympic Finals; Melbourne 1958, Seoul 1988 and Barcelona 1992

← Australia's best ever placing was in Barcelona when they were FOURTH - being beaten in the semi final by Poland and then in the play off for the Bronze Medal by Ghana.

← Australia was undefeated en-route to Barcelona, beating Fiji, Papua New Guinea and New Zealand in the Oceania qualifiers and then drawing 1-1 and 2-2 with Holland in the final eliminator

United and was, even then, clearly on route to a huge career.

But in the months, and in some cases days, that followed Barcelona no fewer than THIRTEEN Aussie players transferred overseas.

And with some final hurdle of a media pundits CONCACAF playoff. claiming this the best The only difference ever Under 23 squad this time around is that Australia has ever Thomson - will add assembled that three over-age play- number could be even ers to his squad - all of greater this time whom are likely to be around - should European based Australia get past the expats.

IT'S A HARD WAY to finish a season but I guess I am really lucky.

Although I don't like being out of the team my injury could have been a lot worse.

It happened in a game against Bolton Wanderers and just before half time I went in for a 50/50 ball.

But instead of getting the ball I got caught with a tackle which ripped through the skin on my leg.

I can remember my leg tingling and I looking down through the hole in my sock to adjust what I thought was my shin pad.

But it wasn't - it was the bone, and I was trying to move it!

That white thing wasn't a shin pad, it was pure bone and you could see right through my leg, it wasn't a good feeling at all!

I was operated on that night and had sixty stitches inserted into a wound which had my calf cut away from its attaching bone.

The surgeon told me that I was very lucky and I am just glad that my leg wasn't broken.

I was told that I would be out for four weeks which takes me up to now - the end of the season.

Imagine, I'm just ready to write my first column for Inside Soccer and then I'm out.

But really, I've been very lucky and other than what seems to be a now seasonal hamstring injury I haven't had any worse ones.

Maybe I'm getting too many hamstring injuries lately, though.

So that's it for this season and there is no end of the season tour for the Hammers either.

That one to Australia last season will have done them for a while although there is a players' end of season trip to Tenerife.

That's an optional one and I'll be off to France to spend some time with my wife's family instead.

I played for five years in France and a lot of people told me that I was picking up a French accent, now it seems that I've got a bit of Cockney in me - maybe a holiday will sort that out, and I'll be backing to being an Aussie again.

The next major game for the Socceroos is against Tahiti for the Inter-continental Championship qualifier.

I haven't heard from Eddie Thomson about that so I suppose that he will rely on a largely local based squad.

Without any disrespect to anyone, Eddie should be able to pick ten teams to beat Tahiti and he will probably overlook the European based players who at that time would be just starting pre-season training.

Everybody at West Ham United is obviously pleased that we pulled clear of the relegation zone and maybe there will be a few changes next season.

Our manager, Harry Redknapp, has always played two wingers when I have been available - and I suppose that he must like playing me there.

But when I have been out he has played five at the back and maybe he will use that more next season.

He certainly seems to like that style and, really, I wouldn't mind playing a different role either.

If I could pick my own position I would play in the middle, although I wouldn't mind playing as a wing back either.

I seemed to have played everywhere in the last few years so I don't really care where I play - as long as I get a game.

The game against Scotland was one of those rare times when a lot of the Aussies in Europe can get together.

But I was really disappointed with the reaction of the Australian media to the result.

After all, Scotland has qualified for the European Championships and they only beat us 1-0.

Maybe they didn't play that well, but it was Hampden and they were Scotland.

They gave us a lot of respect and it would seem that the old days of battling Aussie teams are over.

That is no way any disrespect to any previous team, they were different times - but today most of the players are playing full time in Europe and it really is a different ball game.

But we still get hammered (no pun intended) by some of the Australia media.

Anyway, that's football - and I'll see you later.

JOHN WHITE'S Life's A Ball

PROUDLY BROUGHT TO YOU BY

ARE WINGERS a relic of the past, an anachronism of a bygone age when football was the greatest of all sports, when gentlemanly conduct certainly didn't include spitting, elbowing or that most dreadful of all continental fouls - shirt tugging.

Is our football instead relegated to a repeat of the monotonous over coaching that we have been subjected to since Alf Ramsey desecrated the memory of the greats with his 1966 wingless wonders? Why can't our game feature the greatest of all spectacles; the swerving, dribbling runs down the touch line which culminate in an intricately chipped ball to the far or near post.

Then the hapless defenders, caught wrong footed and turned away from their favourite backs to-goal position are at the mercy of any good centre forward.

When Australia recently played Scotland we saw glimpses of one of the best wingers in recent years, Pat Nevin, who came on as a late sub for the Scots.

And what of our own Robbie Slater, now joined the team of Inside Soccer's writers?

Isn't he really a true winger?

Or Brisbane Striker Frank Farina, who has some truly amazing ball skills.

When he was at Canberra as a raw kid he didn't seem inhibited in going down the touch line.

Has all those years of playing in the 'killing fields' of European football taken that edge from his game?

Me, I blame the coaches.

They have killed the game.

Sure, it is still the greatest, but it isn't the game that it once was.

In the good old days wing play was a premium that no good team could afford to do without - then came that abomination, Alf Ramsey.

He re-invented the meaning of boring - and an equally stupid English public saw him pick up a knighthood for 'services' to sport

Dying breed: wing wizard Robbie Slater

when his dreadful side won the World Cup after re-inventing the laws of the game.

They are the only team to have ever scored a goal in the greatest of all tournaments with a ball which didn't cross the line.

Since then the Ramsey clones, the Boys for England, have taken the fun out of the game.

No more shoulder charges, no more slide tackles from behind - FIFA has done its part too.

But the biggest criminal is the coach.

OK, I'm wrong - so ask any coach you know how he builds a new side.

I bet it starts from the back, with a good goalie, one centre back - or two, or three, - and then the midfield.

The winger? Forget it, he is a fading memory.

Still there is always Ryan Giggs, and then maybe Frank Farina will hug the touchline next season, and Robbie Slater is certainly at a team where wing play is encouraged.

Maybe, maybe, maybe

Davo drops out of South coaching race

WITH THE departure of Frank Arok from the South Melbourne hot seat it looked like Alan Davidson was set to make a big time comeback to the Blues.

At one stage he headed a list of prospective coaches which included Len McKendry, Angie Postecoglou and Kenny Murphy.

But now it seems that Davidson has ruled himself out of the running.

"Alan has contracted for a coaching job in Singapore next season," says South Melbourne General Manager, Peter Filopoulos.

"We would expect to make an announcement shortly concerning the vacancy and at this stage it would seem to be between Kenny Murphy or Angie Postecoglou and Stevie Blair in a dual role."

Davidson's decision follows the offer of a $US10,000 per month job in the new Singapore S League.

The former South Melbourne star had been widely tipped as a certainty to take up the reins at Bob Jane Stadium.

In other coaching moves in Victoria

Harry Bingham has firmed in favouritism to stay at Morwell Falcons while Eddie Krncevic looks set to sign on at Collingwood - with the way cleared by the sacking of Heidelberg coach, Andy Bozakis.

Life after the stiffs

by Mike Komadina

IT TAKES MORE THAN SWALLOW TO MAKE A SUMMER: that's the words of wisdom from ace Marconi striker, Andy Harper.

And the sharpshooter had to see the merit of his own words when he sat out the penultimate Ericsson Cup round through suspension.

Harper has been named as the big reason for the dramatic switch of fortunes at Bossley park this term - but clearly he doesn't see it that way.

However, his sideline 'rest' was over when he got back in for the final game against West Adelaide - and got back on the scoresheet as the Stallions powered back to win in impressive style.

This season has been Harper's best - of that there is no doubt, but his latest period out with suspension was one of agony.

"I'm happy with the way things have gone this season," admits Harper.

"But I'm happy that the team has done well after last year's debacle.

"We have been competitive and are happy to be in contention at the right time in the season."

Behind every success there is always a good reason and that applies equally well to players.

Andy Harper agrees.

"I probably got a bit fed up," he confesses.

"I made a commitment to get fitter this season but it's very difficult to contribute if you're not selected in the team.

"Last season Icardi wouldn't pick me - he just kept me in the stiffs so it is very difficult to contribute to the effort if you're not on the field.

"For whatever reason I've forced my way into Manfred Schaefer's calculations and managed to stay there and once I'm in the starting line up I'll do the job, I'm pretty confident of that."

BY ANY accounts this has been a record setting season for the Brisbane Strikers.

No Queensland side has ever won the national league and the Strikers fourth placing in this season's Ericsson Cup is the highest since the third spot posted by Brisbane City way back in 1981.

The Strikers previous best was sixth place in their inaugural NSL season in 1990/91.

"It has been a really remarkable season for the club," says

Strikers media officer
Jason Kluver.

"We started off by locking in a three year sponsorship with Hyundai and then signed Frank Farina and Jason Polak.

"And this season all sorts of records have tumbled."

"Frank Farina has shattered the previous club single season goal scoring record of nine goals with his tally of nineteen.

"The attendance record has also been smashed several times during this season.

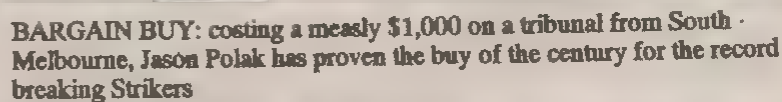

"The old figure was 4,957 which was set last season against Melbourne Knights.

'But the new figure now stands at 8,516 which was set against Morwell

"And add to that our new record sequence of twelve straight games without loss and it has been a great season."

The Strikers now have their sights set on one more target - the Championship which has so far eluded Brisbane sides in the past although both City and Lions are past Johnnie Walker (NSL) Cup winners.

SOCCEROOS BACK IN TOP 50

AUSTRALIA is one of the upward movers in FIFA's very controversial computerised world rankings.

The Socceroos moved up three places to make it into the top flight in 49th place.

Other movers include Colombia which has shot into the top ten nations after moving up ten places.

But the biggest mover in the top fifty was Croatia which moved up 15 places into 28th spot.

Scotland, which beat the Socceroos recently at Hampden, are also upward movers - going up two places into 27th spot.

Marconi target young gun

HIGH FLYING Sydney club Marconi has joined the race to land Canberra Cosmos immensely talented attacking midfielder, Michael Musitano.

Musitano burst onto the Ericsson Cup scene this season with the Cosmos and has quickly picked up a host of admirers.

Surprisingly, Musitano was recently omitted from Eddie Thomson's Olympic squad although there is still a slim chance that he can force his way into the final party for USA '96.

Also included in the string of clubs after the Griffith born player are believed to be South Melbourne, West Adelaide, Adelaide City, UTS Olympic and Sydney United.

Ironically, Sydney United had Musitano on trial during the off season but didn't offer him a worthwhile package to leave Canberra.

Now he looks likely to head to their west Sydney rivals with Marconi coach Manfred Schaefer just one of a chain of coaches keen to add him to their squads for next season.

Musitano has often been played out of position with the Cosmos this season with most seeing his best position as an attacking midfielder or filling in the hole behind the strikers.

Only recently he was courted by South Melbourne officials when the Canberra side played a league match at Bob Jane Stadium.

The Blues looked to be favourites for Musitano's signature but now that the glamour Sydney side has joined the race that has all changed.

"We are very impressed with him," said a Marconi official.

"He is the sort of player who could do well at this club - he also has the kind of style that our fans like."

"Michael is an exciting player who likes to run at defenders."

In a match against Marconi late in the season it was Musitano, along with sweeper John Koch, who sparked a second half fight-back that earned Canberra a share of the points.

This season he has also scored six goals in his twenty seven goals although it is no secret in Canberra that Cosmos coach Mike Lyons wants him to be more aggressive on the park.

Musitano is currently out of contract although Canberra Cosmos have offered him a new deal.

Unhappy striker for Pahang

MORWELL Falcons star Brian Bothwell is set to transfer to money bags Malaysian club, Pahang.

In recent seasons Pahang has been one of the glamour clubs of the M. League but this season has slumped to the bottom of the table.

Bothwell will replace one of the existing star players and is being targeted by Pahang on the recommendation of their Aussie superstar, Alan Davidson. Davidson had a great spell with the former club South Melbourne during the Malaysian off season.

Bothwell had scored set for a move to South Melbourne before the one from Pahang came. Last season he played a short time with Brunei.

.... and Zoricich going to England

ONE OF the success stories at Brisbane Strikers this season has been classy attacking full back Chris Zoricich.

Before joining the Strikers in 1993 the Kiwi international played with English club Leyton Orient for four years, making over sixty league appearances.

Zoricich's form has also seen him become a regular member of the All Whites team.

Now he is set to try his luck overseas again - as soon as the Brisbane side's Top Six run ends.

Zdrilic: the everywhere man

"I WAS very nervous when I first got out there," admits David Zdrilic of his 'debut' performance as a goalkeeper recently for Sydney United.

"There is a whole different perspective on the game playing in goals.

"You have everything in front of you and you have nowhere to go - you are the last line."

Zdrilic became the 'everywhere' man of Aussie soccer against Marconi when an injury to Andrew Crews saw him swap into the keepers' shirt at half time.

"I was really nervous," he says, "but United played well in the second half and I didn't have much to do.

"I couldn't really see the ball when they scored so didn't have much chance with that.

"The ball fell to Mark Babic and when he tried to clear it it just span off his foot and Francis Awaritefe just volleyed it straight past me."

Prior to that game Zdrilic had only ever gone between the sticks as a junior although he is often the 'training ground' goalie.

"I love being goalie at training," confesses the man who has also put the strike back into United at the other end of the field.

"I always muck about there in training and that is why they put me in when Andrew was injured."

But Zdrilic laughs at suggestions that Eddie Thomson might now consider him as a keeper.

"He's overlooked me for every other one," he laughs, "maybe I'll get a chance there.

"But I believe that we are a chance in the Top Six now - we fear no-one."

TONY FRANKEN was the 'nearly man' of Australian goalkeeping. Picked 21 times to wear the Green and Gold he nevertheless managed only two full caps.

Franken was the AIS graduate who always seemed destined to make it BIG after starring in the Australian youth side. But in the end he was kept out of the A team by a string of top keepers. At club level he played over two hundred NSL games for Canberra Arrows, Sydney United, APIA and Parramatta. Now, the 31-year-old has lost his place in the Eagles NSW Super League side to youngster Jason Holmes.

STRIKER by Adrian Alston

Minor Manfred

I'm sick of waiting for the final six play offs before our national soccer league gets really interesting.

What a joke when a team goes through the whole season, finishes top and is then called 'minor' premiers.

So that must have been the pretend season and now the real competition kicks off, eh?

Believe me, all you guys at Marconi, you are the best.

If you go on and win the finals then that is a bonus but you must realise that you have achieved what every professional player in the world wants; to win a league championship.

We play soccer in Australia under FIFA rules so why the bloody hell do we have to play our competition under Rugby League or Aussie Rules with the winner of the Grand Final beings champions?

I'm not saying that we shouldn't have a Top Six play offs but we should have a different cup and call it something else.

Marconi have worked their arses off for the last eight months so give them a championship medal, because that is what they really are, Champions.

I checked every channel the other Sunday night for some results, let alone highlights, and guess what? Nothing...

Marconi had just won the League and Once again its Finals Fever - and Inside Soccer columnist Adrian Alston hits home - never afraid to call it how he sees it.

nobody even knew.

And why don't we get regular large crowds? Because the game wasn't important, it was only a League game.

Come on, Soccer Australia - follow the world with the world game and make every game so important that the supporters will be there every week - not just the for the finals.

And by the way, Manfred, make sure you still win the Grand Final or they will probably still call you minor.

All the best - I love this game.

CUP FACTS, TRIVIA & TIPS

* Since their first FA Cup meeting in 1898 Manchester United have won six out of eight, including the last five meetings. Red Devils' supporters will tell you the best win of all was the 1977 final.

* Manchester United will play in their red strips - having won the toss against Liverpool.

* Both keepers, Schmeichel and James, can expect busy afternoons but experts tip that the Dane will be the busier. This season Fowler and Collymore have formed a sensational Liverpool strike partnership.

* Robbie Fowler has netted four goals in the two league meetings between the clubs this season - and Manchester United have only managed one point out of a possible six against the other Reds.

* Out of form Andy Coles is a big problem to United. He looks to have lost his place to Scholes who scored the first goal in that 5-0 thumping of Nottingham Forest, after getting Coles' first team shirt.

* Superstars Andy Coles and Ian Rush are likely to be bench warmers for the start of the Cup Final.

* The influence of Eric Cantona on United's recent matches cannot be overlooked. He has scored several vital goals giving Manchester United 1-0 wins over Arsenal, Spurs and Newcastle.

* Hard man defender 'Razor' Ruddock looks a good bet to mark either Giggs or Cantona.

THE LIKELY STARTING LINE-UP

Peter Schmeichel (Born 18.11.63, Gladsaxe)

Danish international goalkeeper. 6' 4", joined United from Brondby and has played over 150 league games. 'Mr Dependable', always giving 100%. Does not tend to hold back on defenders either. Like an extra man in defence. 8

Denis Irwin (Born 31.10.85, Cork)

Left sided defender. Started out at Leeds as an apprentice, playing 72 games. Later moved to Oldham (another 167 games) then came the big move to Man Utd. Irish international who is a solid defender. 8

Gary Pallister (Born 30.06.65, Ramegate)

Played 156 games for Middlesbrough before joining Manchester United. Now played over 200 games at Old Trafford and has also become a regular in the England side. Injury has wrecked most of his season but has got back in time to enjoy the best part. 7.5

David May (Born 24.06.70 Oldham)

Six foot central defender who played 100+ games for Blackburn before joining United. Ideal replacement for the injured Steve Bruce. Likely to play instead of Bruce who might be considered too much of a risk. 7

Gary Neville (Born 18.02.75 Bury)

Former United trainee who has now made the full England side. Played in last year's losing Cup Final side. 8

Lee Sharpe (Born 25.05.71 Halesowen)

Trainee at Torquay before moving on to a slightly bigger United! Not the player he was just a few seasons ago but still potentially dangerous. Deadly on the wing. Former England international. 7

David Beckham (Born 02.05.75 London)

Former trainee at United, also had loan spell at Preston. Young midfielder who looks to have the world at his feet. Scores great goals under pressure - like his one in the semi. Key player in midfield which is a lot for a youngster to handle. 8

Roy Keane (Born 10.08.71 Cork)

Left Cobh Ramblers for Nottingham Forest where he played 114 games and scored 22 goals. Will try to dominate the midfield and is not afraid to tackle to win the ball. Is United's ball winner and general and they need to have him on top of his game for the rest of the team to get enough ball to display their skills. 8

Ryan Giggs (Born 29.11.73 Cardiff)

Played for England schoolboys before becoming a full England international. Joined United as a youngster and won a FA Youth Cup medal. Also in the side which won the FA Cup two seasons ago. In good form recently although he has never played to his best in United's last two FA Cup finals. Will create problems down the left wing. 8.5

Paul Scholes (Born 16.11.74 Salford)

Former United trainee who has scored lots of goals this season including a few off the bench. Replaced Andy Cole in United's 5-0 demolition of Nottingham Forest which has probably seen him get the nod for the final. The United attack look sharp with him and Cantona up front. 8

Eric Cantona (Born 24.05.66 Paris)

L'enfant Terrible. French international who has played at Auxerre, Marseille, Bordeaux, Montpellier and Nimes. Also trialed with Sheffield Wednesday but signed with Leeds United after Trevor Francis dalled over his transfer. After falling out with Howard Wilkinson moved to United for £1.2million - Alex Ferguson's best ever deal. A brilliant big occasion player. 10

THE PROBABLE BENCH

Andy Cole (Born 15.10.71 Nottingham)

England international. Former Arsenal trainee (1 league game) with spells at Fulham and Bristol City. Taken to Newcastle by Kevin Keegan where he became a scoring sensation causing United to splash out £7million. Not had the most successful of times at Old Trafford and a possible target for Chelsea in the off season. 6.5

Brian McClair (Born 08.12.63 Bellshill)

Former Scottish international. Apprentice at Aston Villa before moving to Motherwell and then Celtic. Played over 300 games with United since moving south and is an important off the bench player. Plays either in midfield or up front. 7.5

Philip Neville (Born 21.01.77 Bury)

Made the England squad this season. Former United youth player who has the confidence of Alex Ferguson. 8

TOTAL: 111

Liverpool

THE LIKELY STARTING LINE UP

David James (Born 01.08.70 Welwyn)

6'5" goalie who was a trainee at Watford before moving to Liverpool in 1992. After struggling initially he has been outstanding. England Under 21. 7.5

Rob Jones (Born 05.11.71 Wrexham)

Right defender and England international. Regular at Crewe from 1987 to 1991 when he joined Liverpool. Attacks down the right flank. 8.5

Nell Ruddock (Born 09.05.68 London)

Apprentice at Millwall but moved to Spurs then Southampton and after a spell back at White Hart Lane moved to Anfield in 1993. In and out of the Liverpool side this season. 7

Mark Wright (Born 01.08.63 Dorchester)

Defender whose first league club was Oxford. Played over 150 games at Derby and moved to Anfield in 1991 when he became an England player. Starting to return to his old form of the 1990 World Cup. 7.5

John Scales (Born 04.07.66 Harrogate)

6'2" defender who came to Liverpool in 1994 after spells at Leeds, Bristol Rovers and Wimbledon. Fought hard for his position and won't let the club down at Wembley. 7.5

Jason McAteer (Born 18.06.71 Birkenhead)

Irish World Cup player in 1994. Part of the Bolton side in 1991 which had a superb Cup run - including wins over Liverpool, Arsenal and Everton. Joined the Reds this season, the team he supported as a boy. Faces a crucial battle with fellow Irish international Denis Irwin. 8.5

Jamie Redknapp (Born 25.06.73 Barton)

Joined Liverpool from Bournemouth in 1990. England international who has had his season interrupted by injury and an in-form Michael Thomas. Recently re-established in the first team. 7.5

Steve McManaman (Born 11.02.72 Liverpool)

Midfielder/winger who joined Liverpool straight from school. Made his mark in the 1992 Cup Final against Sunderland. 8.5

John Barnes (Born 07.11.63 Jamaica)

Attacking midfielder who was a star of the Watford team of the '80s. Signed for Liverpool in 1987 and has played for England over 80 times. Can still score amazing goals but has a tendency to drift out of games. Wembley would be a great showcase for his dazzling skills. 7.5

Stan Collymore (Born 22.01.71 Stone)

Spells at Crystal Palace, Southend and Nottingham Forest where he became a legend on the terraces. Chose Liverpool this season over Everton and after initial problems has finally settled down and developed as a team player. 8

Robbie Fowler (Born 09.04.75

Liverpool)

Grew up as an Everton supporter but signed for Liverpool as a trainee. Timing and reading of the play's excellent and makes up for perceived lack of pace. 9

THE PROBABLE BENCH

Ian Rush (Born 20.10.61

St Asaph)

Wales international who started his career at Chester. In 1980 moved to Liverpool and has broke every club goalscoring record since then. Brief stint at Juventus in 1987/88 season scoring

Special Preview by Michael Reeves & Charles G Armstrong

only 7 goals in 29 games. What a sub!!!
Leaving Liverpool at season's end. 8

Michael Thomas (Born 02.10.64 Lambeth)
Former England midfielder. Scored the goal in 1989 for Arsenal against Liverpool which gave the Gunners the title. Joined Liverpool in 1992. Also scored for Liverpool in their last FA Cup final appearance. Struggled with injury over the last few years. 6.5

Phil Babb (Born 30.11.70 Lambeth)
Still in line for Mark Wright's spot in the starting line up. Periods at Millwall, Bradford City and Coventry before coming to Anfield in 1994. Has had to battle hard for a spot in a team which has many talented centre backs. 7

The Edinburgh side appear to have the 'Indian sign' on their Glasgow rivals this year – but they have only ever won against Rangers four times in over a hundred years, and NEVER in a Scottish Cup Final.

Gary Locke

Youngest captain in the Premier League

YOUTH soccer tournaments have exploded all over the world, all over the world, that is, except for Australia.

In the past they have been generally low key affairs with the one notable exception being the Kanga Cup, now held in Canberra.

But now, ISO brings you THE AUSTRALIA CUP - held in Bankstown, Sydney during the July school holidays and an event not to be missed by any junior soccer enthusiast.

Sydney is acknowledged as the finest deep water harbour in the world and because of that, and its many other fabulous tourist attractions, it is a mecca for holiday makers - from Australia and overseas.

That is the beauty of the AUSTRALIA CUP - a holiday in Sydney, and football too!

Fuller details on the event are available from the organisers who have been honoured with the endorsement of RALE RASIC who piloted Australia to their one and only World Cup finals in 1974.

"The format is exciting and is sure to be a winner with all the young boys and girls who play," says Rale.

"Our future is in youth football - which is why I spend so much of my own time in that very important area.

"I would recommend that any team manager or coach who is serious about his football contacts the organisers for more information."
